WHEELING INDUSTRIES.

The Virginia Mill and its Successor the Benwood Iron Works.

By our Old Employe. In entering upon the history of the Virginia Mill, it may be well to remark of the iron business in all its departments, that in no portion of the United States had it attained anything like the perfecdeep and strong the foundation upon which to build up an extensive and prosperous business. At the close of the year 1866 Mr. Norton's official connection with the affairs of the facture which characterize the operations of the present day. Much of the machinery was of crude construction, and the pail machines, although upon the same principle as those now in use, were very Company terminated, and he has since been extensively identified with Nail much inferior. Wheeling, therefore, had no advantage over other points, either in machinery or process of manipulating iron, to which could be attributed the unprecedented popularity of what was bay, A. W. Campbell and the present in-cumbent, Alexander Laughlin. Major Loring has occupied the position of Secreknown in the market as the STEVENS NAIL

It was simply the greater care and attention given to that branch of the business that caused the Wheeling pail book keeper for the Company ever since its business that caused the Wheeling nail to rise at once to highest favor in the market. Stimulated then by the immense popularity of the Stevens nail, E. M. Norton conceived the idea of erecting a Notion conceived the idea of erecting a shops for the manufacture of kegs, a new ware house and a rejuvenation of the as a distinct specialty. In 1847 he organized a company consisting of himself, E ized a company consisting of himself, E the productive capacity had been increase. W. Stevens, John Hunter, William Flemed from 40 machines to 65, and has since ming and the late Robert Morrison, under the title of Hunter, Morrison & Co. The mill was built on the the grounds now oc-capled by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad capled by the Battimore & Onto restricted 26 at the present time. From the annual Depot, and was the first mill ever built report of the National Association of ture of nails. Forty machines were put in position, and the works were considered as of extraordinary capacity for that day. Success attended its operations from the start, and so long as its affairs were well or a total 499,087, being a yearly average of 166,352 kegs, or a weekly average of Unfortunately there came to be too much of the native Virginia element in the construction of the company to secure that harmony essential to continued success The rough handed, out spoken, practical element, from the great free State and the gloved, imperious, impracticable element of the Virginia school, like oil and water could at best but form a mechanical mixture. After two years, E. M. Nortes, with some of the best workmen withdrew from the Virginia and with others from abroad organized the company which built the Belmont After the withdrawal of those parties the Virginia Mill was re-organized under the title of Flemmanagement continued with but tolerable success until the year 1852, when the grounds belonging to the Company were sold to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co., whose road was then approaching completion. About that time the late John Gill, who had, like Mr. Agnew, been largely interested in the various schemes designed to inaugurate a new order of things in Wheeling and had thus wasted the major part of a handsome fortune became identified with the Virginia Company and it was reorganized under the title of Gill, Fiemming & Co. Some time was spent in endeavoring to procure a suitable location on which to set up the building and machinery constituting the Virginia Mill.

The Company received and entertained a proposition from the late J. M. Bush-field, of the firm of Robinson & Co., tendering twelve acres of land from the McMechen farm, four miles south of Wheel ing, on the river bank, and the coal underlying one hundred acres more, taking an equivalent therefor in the stock of the Company. The Central Ohio Railroad was then in process of construction, but its river terminus had not yet been positively determined, but in the faith of its final location at the point, now the city of Bellaire, the Company accepted Mr. Bushfield's proposition. For both river and ad communication it proved to be a well chosen location. The Company proceeded at once to the reconstruction of their Mill, commencing the work in the latter part of 1852, and were ready for operation in the early part of 1853, building also a number of tensment houses, thus constituting the nucleus of the boxes and a large $2 vial of powder, which is important in old, serious cases; or $1 per single ox. Sold by ALL Druggists, or sent by an eresipt of price. Address HUMPHREYS' SPECIFIC HOMEOPATHIC MEDICINE CO., No. 542 BRADEWAY. N. S. 642 BRADEWAY. N. of the town of Benwood. It will be remembered that for some time previous to the sale of the Wheeling mill site to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad as well as Ellicit and J. & N. M. Mercer, Bellstre, O. after the reconstruction of the works on the new location, the management of the company's affairs was not under the control of practical men. Misunderstanding and consequent dissatisfaction prevailed. resulting in frequent changes of administration, under none of which much success was achieved. Through the success ive titles of Gill, Kelley & Co, Kelley, Holloway & Co., it finally, in the year 1857, became the property of A. Wilson Mr. Kelley having a clear field to himself, with several years' experience in the business, brought to bear excellent executive abilities, and up to the year 1864 managed his business with great success. At that time, there being some difficulty, originating in the claims of the former owners, the mill was advertised for sale under a decree of court.

While the sale of the Virginia Mill property as ordered under decree of Court was still pending, E. M. Morton, who had sometime before withdrawn from all connection with the nail business, set about the organization of a prospective company with a view of purchasing the mill property. Having secured a stock sub-scription sufficient to cover the covion sufficient to cover the estimated value of the property, an agent was employed who, on the day of sale in June. 1864, at public suction, bought the mill at one hundred and sixty-four thousand, five hundred dollars. The franchises included in this purchase were the mill, the 100 acre coal privilege, and with the exception of a few lots that had been sold the original 12 acres deeded by J. M. Bushfield; also about seventy-five tenement houses which had been built by the Virginia Company. The Company was now organized under the title of the

with E. M. Norton as President. Just after the purchase of the mill property, the Company took into consideration and accepted a proposition from Cyrus Mendenhall to take stock in the corporation to the amount of sixty thousand dollars, putting in as an equivalent his Blast Furnace, located in Martine Ferry, Ohio. In this property was included an ore farm of fifty acres, several lots in the town and the site on the bank of the New Advertisements.

wors and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of Consumption.

Who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone, a habit frequently learned from evil companions or at school, the effects of which aronightly felt, even when asleep, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately. Whata pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the darling of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life by the consequences of deviating from the path of nature and indulging in a certain servet habit. Such persons must, before contemplating matter and indulging in a certain servet habit. Such persons must, before contemplating reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes weavy pligrimage; the presspect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melanchedy reduction that the happiness of another becomes blighted with our own.

When the misguided and impredient votary of pleasare finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from edaction and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nor turnal pains in the head and limbe, dimness of sight, deathess, nodes on the shin hones and arms, blotches on the head and limbe, dimness of sight, deathess, nodes on the shin hones and arms, blotches on the head and limbe, dimness of sight, deathess, nodes on the shin hones and arms, blotches on the head and limbe, dimness of sight, deathess, nodes on the shin hones and arms, blotches on the head and limbe, dimness of sight, deathess, nodes on the shin hones and arms, blotches on the head and limbe, dimness of sight, deathess, nodes on the s
